Performance-based Planning and Programming
Noteworthy Practices
Performance Management Requirements

• MAP-21 and the FAST Act require USDOT, States, Metropolitan Planning Organizations (MPOs) and public transportation providers to implement a performance management approach for Federally-supported highways and transit.

• Why?
  – Prioritize needs
  – Align resources to optimize system performance, collaboratively
  – Increase accountability and transparency
MAP-21 establishes seven national performance goals in safety, infrastructure condition, congestion, system reliability, emissions, and freight movement.

USDOT (FTA and FHWA) establish national performance measures.

State DOTs and transit providers develop performance targets and performance-based plans.

MPOs coordinate with States and transit providers to integrate performance targets and plans into planning documents.

Responsibilities of State DOT, Transit Provider and MPO

- MPO incorporates performance-based plans into TIP and MTP, set performance targets for MPA.
- Metropolitan Planning Agreements define roles and responsibilities.
- State DOT develops safety, reliability, congestion, asset management, freight management plans & targets.
- Transit agencies develop transit asset management plans and agency safety plans and targets.
